Victor,

I don't believe we've met, but I work for the City and County of Denver, reviewing all of the HUD projects in the city for environmental and historical issues. My normal procedure is to contact Deb Gomez in the City's Environmental Services Division when we have a property that is in the VB/I-70 Superfund site for specific conditions and precautions at that property. However, Lynne Brown of Habitat for Humanity said that she had been working with you regarding two properties in Denver's Cole neighborhood (3720-22 Franklin Street and the property at approximately 3800 High Street). Could we save Deb some work by dealing directly with each other on these properties? Andy Blackmun of Habitat says you're going to get the reports on these properties to him. Could I get copies also?

One of my interns, Dan Kayser, has communicated with you on past projects and speaks very highly of your helpfulness. Maybe it would be a good idea for all of us to meet with you briefly sometime soon so that we can learn what services and information are available from EPA that would help us to better serve our constituents. I have already taken each of my interns to the EPA library, which they find as valuable as I did when I was in grad school a few years ago.

I look forward to hearing from you.
